
emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> Terry

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> Thinking of getting one? Lately, I'm looking at getting a CPAP for obstructive sleep apnea. If you remember Sojo, he had one and felt great on one. They cost however about $500-$1000. Hehe. I wonder how really accurate that is going to be and why the he## NT's need to hold grudges over conversations. (or maybe it's because we're so consistent and routine?). Anyhow, I think it's unfair but perhaps something NTs tend to do less (anecdotally observed here) of and that is give others with quiriness renewed expectations. H

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> Thinking of getting one? Lately, I'm looking at getting a CPAP for obstructive sleep apnea. If you remember Sojo, he had one and felt great on one. They cost however about $500-$1000. Hehe. I wonder how really accurate that is going to be and why the he## NT's need to hold grudges over conversations. (or maybe it's because we're so consistent and routine?). Anyhow, I think it's unfair but perhaps something NTs tend to do less (anecdotally observed here) of and that is give others with quiriness renewed expectations. H Herself and I were looking at this article and wondering if it's due for publication on 01 April. BTW, the CPAP box has made a large difference to Herself's sleep (and indirectly to mine, as I no longer listen for long breathless periods between SNORK noises!). Your blog is now almost impossible to comment to, or I would have told you sooner. - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

Lately, I'm looking at getting a CPAP for obstructive sleep apnea. If you remember Sojo, he had one and felt great on one. They cost however about $500-$1000. I'm still waiting for my sleep-lab appointment (actually a home wearable recorder - supposed to have a shorter waiting list than the actual sleep lab). If this ever comes through, then hopefully it would be NHS supplied. Terry

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> Thinking of getting one? I don't think so - apart from the likely price, it's yet another datastream to handle, you still have to fit this signal into the context of handling the conversational input & output. Perhaps if you set the triggering level to high (insensitive), and kept the indicators to a very limited number, and the signal associated with them very distinct - So that you got few, informative, & clear signals it might work. Lately, I'm looking at getting a CPAP for obstructive sleep apnea. If you remember Sojo, he had one and felt great on one. They cost however about $500-$1000. I'm still waiting for my sleep-lab appointment (actually a home wearable recorder - supposed to have a shorter waiting list than the actual sleep lab). If this ever comes through, then hopefully it would be NHS supplied. Terry I've been wondering about getting an LED signs that I can get one of those fold up keyboards (like they have for some PDAs) and then scroll talk to people. It will be a tad slower but will be much easier for me because of the muteness. Now as for them communicating back....dunno. Might use double laptops maybe with simple comlink for peer to peer chatting. Mabye someone will invent a simpler chat computer with keyboard and existing link .

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Chris - 2008/11/16 23:03 ooooooooooooo.... it's the rhino... errr... ryno <bounces on the rhino :) I like the rude bastard <bounces some more

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Raving Loonie - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> I am thinking of Monty Python's infamous Hungarian phrase book. <http://bau2.uibk.ac.at/sg/python/Scripts/TheHungarianPhrasebookSketch>

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> I am thinking of Monty Python's infamous Hungarian phrase book. <http://bau2.uibk.ac.at/sg/python/Scripts/TheHungarianPhrasebookSketch> It wasn't me! :) <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/article/0,,7-1810361,00.html> Terry

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

Your blog is now almost impossible to comment to, or I would have told you sooner. Why is that? Is it some font issue? The best way to avoid that is to read the comments and then reply. I still need to look at why that silly style is doing that. Nope. Logon authentication thingy. Even when I'm logged in to LJ and even if I supply username and PW again, no dice. It's always made me authenticate twice for your blog. This time I quit after four levels of login. - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

ooooooooooooo.... it's the rhino... errr... ryno <bounces on the rhino :) I like the rude bastard <bounces some more
With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :)

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :)

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :)

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by ryno - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I 'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.

;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :) and then you lose interest. - Ryno is a rude bastard and doesn't do email. My opinions may not be those of my employers, and should not be construed as representing them.

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :) and then you lose interest. That's nothing compared to the effects of inflation - being pre-metric I get heavily stoned :)

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Raving Loonie - 2008/11/16 23:03

<http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg19025456.500-device-warns-you-i...> I am thinking of Monty Python's infamous Hungarian phrase book. <http://bau2.uibk.ac.at/sg/python/Scripts/TheHungarianPhrasebookSketch> It wasn't me! :) <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/article/0,,7-1810361,00.html> I've not heard or seen that sketch before. I suspect that it would be very amusing for me. I also delight in the confused richness of inferences. There was a British comedy show which I always found hilarious! painfully funny. ... I'm still not quite sure as to why ???? ~~~~ 'Some mothers do 'ave 'em ' Thanks for showing me the four candles sketch, Terry :) Here is an old one that amused me. I suppose that it appealed to my purile instincts. I still chuckle when I read it over .. <http://www.epicure.demon.co.uk/commonentrance.html> Cordially, RL

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :) BTDT

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :) BTDT If Scrooge were American, would he be called 'green fingered'? :)

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

With 10kg of cat, a toy poodle, and Herself already involved, I'm not sure there's all that much of me left unbounced.
;) So you're actually the castle, rather than the king thereof? :) L'etat, c'est moi! You mean that you're in a bit of a state? :) I hardly feel capital at the moment... That's what happens when you spend too long counting coins, your hands go numb :) BTDT If Scrooge were American, would he be called 'green fingered'? :) Simpler name. Grinch

:D Thanks Dr. Sues!

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Terry Jones - 2008/11/16 23:03

Simpler name. Grinch :D Thanks Dr. Sues! Apart from the films he's not particularly well know over here (Dr S I mean).

=====

emotional social intelligence 'Emotional social intelligence prosthetic'

Posted by Hylander - 2008/11/16 23:03

Simpler name. Grinch :D Thanks Dr. Sues! Apart from the films he's not particularly well know over here (Dr S I mean). You mean, you had to use a search engine? Seems an American tradition since the 70s I think. Do you know The Giving Tree children's book? I do think it's possibly due to earlier distribution models. I mean, it's somewhat obvious with Harry Potter phenomenon. They speak as if it were unusual sometimes. I mean the interchange of literature. Well, I take it back...I really can't say how much influence there is. It is amazing how some things get through and others don't. Some of our most obscure stuff can be popular in certain countries while quite popular items are completely ignored. Another example, some singers here only have big sales or cult following in foreign countries. Television is the same way. (Strangely, MacGuyver which was #10 here was #1 in many countries in Asia for some reason...it somehow appeals to something valued in their culture ie: maybe the ingenuity / resourcefulness or ninja like factor?)