a socialist who won't allow the national anthem played at his events... no one knows if he's an american... and his people register dead people to garnish more votes... and the idiot wants to raise taxes on the people who actually create jobs... I guess the only slightly relevant issue here is whether chuckles the racist clown actually knows that he's disseminating outright lies, or if he's just regurgitating the outright lies that have been put forward by other morons.

Considering that chuckles the racist clown has never typed out an original thought in his decade of usenet participation, it's a safe bet that he's just regurgitating the outrageous lies of others. He probably knows that they're lies, but doesn't care. He should be thankful that the First Amendment makes it possible for him to express himself, even if that expression causes him to be exposed to justifiable ridicule. Go back to stealing porn and posting it to your hilarious blog, it's all you're really qualified to do. It will be sad for you when those 27 Electoral Votes from Florida go to the Democrats. One of those 27 is Mickey Mouse... A product of Obama's ACORN machine... <http://www.chuck-lysaght.info/>

What are you whining about now? I'm whining because someone stole my bike, and I've been sick all week. Later, I'm going to whine about my dying father and the fact that relations are tense with my entire family. A few days ago, I whined about the fact that my fellow tenants in my seedy apartment building are up till all hours of the night screaming, yelling, and waving firearms at each other. On occasion, I whine about the fact that I'm utterly alone and destitute. I frequently whine about all the bad things that happen to me because I've spent a lifetime training myself to be the consummate victim. Oh wait. No, that's you. Go outside and get some fresh air, Gamble. You're becoming overly concerned about the minor details of my life again and bringing them to a poetry newsgroup. heh... <http://www.chuck-lysaght.info>
